

ERMA C. JOHNSON HADLEY
INTERIM CHANCELLOR

February 5, 2010

Business, the arts, medicine, technology, and hundreds more professions and occupations have one factor in common ... constant change. Tarrant County College must see change before it happens so we can prepare our students to succeed in tomorrow's world, not yesterday's. How do we meet this challenge? With your expertise and help, we craft and adopt a comprehensive strategic plan that guides us for the next decade and beyond. On behalf of the students, faculty, staff and Board of the Tarrant County College District, I ask you to consider investing some of your precious time helping us chart our future.

We are calling our strategic planning process TCC Vision 2015. In preparing our plan, we recognize that to be the community's college, we must know what the community wants and expects from us. In order to get that information, we are conducting a series of six community forums across Tarrant County – one at each of our five TCC campuses and a sixth in Benbrook. At each forum, we expect to hear from a broad and diverse group of citizens. We hope that you will select one of these meetings to attend, and tell us what you believe your community college should be in five years. Here are the meeting details:
